

Vision. Oilstone's vision is to see pastors and ministry leaders well equipped for leadership.

Mission. Our mission is to provide practical, but theologically well grounded leadership equipping events, so that experienced pastors and ministry leaders can refresh and sharpen their leadership skills as they strive to grow in this vital aspect of their pastoral vocation.

Strategy. Oilstone offers 4.5 day fully residential leadership conferences and encourages continuing on the job mentoring.

Growing on the Job. We believe, like learning to drive a car, leadership cannot be learned from a manual, but rather from a life-time's journey sitting behind the wheel.

"Oilstone is fantastic! The material presented is very relevant to gospel ministry and I'll be dipping into the material time and time again in the years ahead. The combination of Peter's pastoral and Michael's business experience meshes really well. Well worth the time and money going."

Pastor, Program sized church.

"Thank you for taking the time to apply and give examples of both university and church ministry context. Such great ministry material"

AFES Staff worker, Metropolitan Campus.

"Oilstone is the best pastoral leadership program in the market."

Church Planter, Coach to Planters.

The concept of an oilstone – using a rock for sharpening – is one of the oldest pieces of ‘technology’ around. So too is learning on the job, with the support of another competent leader. Like using an oilstone, on the job training takes extra time and effort, but it is still the way to get the sharpest edge.

Biographies.

Michael Lin and Peter Moore met in the course of their ministry as directors of Katoomba Christian Convention, and have both been involved in church leadership for over 2 decades.

Michael works as a director, ministry advisor, coach and trainer. He has been in lay church leadership roles for over 30 years with large churches, church plants and revitalisations. He is a former director of AFES and is currently on the Board of Geneva Push. Formerly a senior executive with Macquarie Bank and Lend Lease Group and family companies. He has also been a leadership consultant, trainer and executive coach with Mt Eliza/Melbourne Business School and the Australian Institute of Management.

Peter is today involved in an extensive mentoring ministry. He currently meets individually each 2 months for 2 to 3 hours with more than 30 Presbyterian, Anglican, Baptist, Lutheran and independent church pastors. Peter has been an active Presbyterian pastor since 1991 in family, pastoral and program sized churches and has been a theological educator since 2005. He trains mentors in accredited courses at Sydney Missionary and Bible College and Brisbane School of Theology.
